

$2.00 A-Gallon Gas After November 2012 Election?

Freedumb In America Today

$2.00 A-Gallon Gas After November 2012 Election?

Robert Buckner - 8/18/2011 11:03 AM

Dear Friends,

GREENVILLE, S.C. -- Republican U.S. presidential hopeful Michele Bachmann promises voters gas prices would fall to $2 per gallon if she makes it to the White House in 2013.

I have much respect for this candidate, Michele Bachman, and it has just increased!

Bravo to a candidate who is not merely defending conservative principles which should already be accepted captured territory – pursuant to the above quote: Michele Bachman has the tenacity to actually profess and predict an actual "ADVANCEMENT" for America and all Americans who have been suffering und this open-attack on our economy – should she be elected!

Okay – strategically, from a purely politically-tactical point-of-view – what has she done? She has issued to Odumba and his cadre of "Liberal-Left Ruling-Class Statist" and all of their Democrat minions – A CHALLENGE!

She says that, "If elected, gas prices will fall to $2.00 per gallon!"

What can the Democan'ts say in response to that? ..."No; it can't be done!" Who would want to elect someone from a party that doesn't believe (or even more troubling – does not want) that we could have $2.00 a-gallon gas again?

If the Democan'ts should flip and say, "WE could provide &2.00 a-gallon gas" then they must explain why – when they controlled both houses and the Presidency – did they not accomplish it!

The Democan'ts could also say that; "Michele Bachman can't do what would be necessary to allow $2.00 a-gallon gas to return."

To which, she could respond with a challenge to the American people: "Elect me and I will prove it!"

Does anyone other than me think that America might just be willing to accept that challenge from Michele Bachman - to believe that we in America could drill our own crude and refine it and bring back a $2.00 gallon of gas?

Does anyone other than me believe that a positive "CAN-DO" spirit and perspective of America and Americans might be a welcomed "new" position coming from our candidates and conservative segment of our community-at-large?

I say that with this simple campaign-driven statement – Michele Bachman has given me hope that there may be some real intelligent fight left in a few of our professed conservative candidates!

Robert

Freedumb In America Today