

America: Better As Socialist State?

The 2008 election made clear that America was either duped, or acted willingly, to make the most significant changes in political, economic, social and moral direction since its inception.

For those who may have voted Democrat and now say that they did not recognize the true Socialist that is President Obama and the Democrat party - to try to continue that claim is obviously - impossible.

That quite necessarily leaves the only reason and rationale for continued support of President Obama and the Democrat political party agenda to be for the ultimate purpose that America becomes purely a Socialist State.

I believe that the true majority of Americans would reject the notion that America would ever choose to become a Socialist State, however, I believe that the possibility cannot be dismissed.

Maybe Obama's the right choice for America

In all of history - which preceded America, there had never before been a government such as that which our Founder's implemented. Our Founding Fathers referred to America as an, "Experiment" because indeed - it was!

There had been Kings and Rulers of various station and privilege. Good ones and bad ones; moderate-dictators and evil-tyrants too, but never before, a nation with a Constitution and a Representative Republican form of government - self-governed by the People - the majority of which, were Christian!

It would seem in reviewing history that throughout time, the majority of people had been subservient to some minority [in number] "Ruling Class." Every now and again there would be rebellions and even revolutions, but after the fighting was done there would be just another minority "Ruling Class," that would emerge and assume political control over the masses once again!

Just by way of the repetition of this throughout history, one must assume that overall - this was the accepted standard as the model for the political-management of cultures and governments. Society was fundamentally reduced to two basic segments: The, "Ruling-Class," and those who were subservient to, and dependent upon it; the "Under-Class."

I am sure that most Americans today would recoil at the very notion of this sort of political reality. They would immediately launch into rants about freedom and liberty and "Their" Rights, and, "Never in America!"

However, how many of those same, Independent, Freedom-Loving, Liberty-Seeking, Americans also want their, "Social Security," "Prescription Drug Plan," "Medicare," and all of the other "Rights" they believe the Government owes them?

Do people today ever question why people throughout all of history were always, in some manner - subject to the societal reality of the "Ruling-Class" and the "Under-Class?"

There is no question that preceding generations in history elsewhere did not have the individual liberty and freedom that we were handed by our Founding Fathers via their "experiment"- America. However, they were provided with "Law and Order," "Civil Structure," and as such, even a measure of, "Protection" and "Security," albeit without much say or influence. On the other hand, they also had little or no responsibility or burden of managing or maintaining it either. It was sort of a, voluntary or mutually-agreed - servitude. Both classes got what they were willing to accept!

So, how could I say that maybe Barrack Obama might be Right for America today? Well, look at the last 100 years in America and specifically, the choices that have been made, with regard to "We The People's" choice for our political leaders and their social/political agendas!

Can anyone please cite for me the Battle which took place when an "Un-Constitutional" Tax on Income was made law? Can anyone recall the revolution that was caused when our Judiciary determined that murdering babies was legal? These are two fairly easy-to-understand legal premises which were made into law - all the while - being UN-CONSTITUTIONAL!

Complacency; apathy; support; - which of these terms properly identify the American Christian's position and thus - reaction and effect - upon these events? ...And so it must be - that the majority either desired or, at the very least, accepted, these new laws! Otherwise - how could they be so?

Quite literally – the American Christian’s concern should not be focused upon the completely bankrupt nature and character of President Obama – or even all of the Liberal-Left Statist political realm from whence he came – NO – the American Christian’s true concern should be focused upon the reality that this man was chosen by Americans (some who profess Christianity) to be the Leader of America!

So – in reality – how different are all of those “Under-Class” throughout history and many of Americans today? What was the primary cause, reason or rationale, for the acceptance of the “Ruling Class” by the “Under Class” throughout history? Answer: The Ruling Class provided some measure of, “Law and Order,” “Civil Structure,” “Protection” and “Security!”

You cannot tell me that people do not know that the Liberal-Left Statist politicians today are: liars, thieves and scoundrels of the lowest possible moral standards. So why are these crooked politicians able to successfully garner enough support to be elected to public office?

One answer

The answer to the aforementioned question of “Why” people today are willing to elect unscrupulous people to public office is that, those politicians promise them security – and many Americans today are so afraid and so desirous to feel secure – that they are willing to exchange some measure of their own individual freedom and liberty – for the “Promised” security of the untrustworthy, lying politician!

The Liberal-Left Statist politicians are exploiting the most easily-sold commodities in the world: FEAR and GREED!

Give [us] (the Liberal-Left Statist politicians) more of your money, and the money of people who have more money than you – and we will give you: Social Security; we will give you, Medicare; we will give you, Food Stamps; we will give you, Shelter! ...“We will take care of and provide for you!

What Happened?

The reason our Founding Fathers thought that the American Experiment of individual freedom and liberty would work and that there could be a self-governing people in control of the political system, was that the majority of the populace were Christian.

Individually, each American citizen was answerable to the same Higher Authority – God. As defined in the "Declaration of Independence," ...All men (A nullification of the historically-accepted notion of a "Ruling-Class" and an "Under-Class.") were Created equal – by God – with certain unalienable Rights. As these Rights were endowed to man by God, Americans were obligated only to God, their Creator – and not some "Ruling-Class!"

Individual freedom and liberty were abundant in America because Americans were subservient only to God! American's Rights did not come from a "Ruling-Class," king or dictator. Individual God-Believing Christian people – all together – held the reigns-of-political-power! Americans could always easily choose their direction because they brought their singular and unified belief in God to their political/bureaucratic government realms. As long as God was recognized as the highest authority – then there was always a unified people – politically and within our society and culture-at-large and no need to seek a Man or king for their protection.

The "American Experiment" worked for as long as the American people, in particular and specifically-important – the Christian, were willing to recognize God as Sovereign! As soon the belief and faith in God of Americans waned – So did their confidence and security that America is God-Blessed!

So, if Americans have no faith in God how can we have faith in each other?

It is easy then for the State to become the recognized mutual-sovereign – and in theory – we can all share in the security for each other.

John Adams said: "Duty is ours, results are God's."

If there is a Godly candidate – our duty is to vote for him – even if everything in the political polls tells us he cannot win! What good is it to say that we have faith – if indeed we do not exercise it?

Are we really to believe that, "Okay – this is the candidate God would prefer – but I've got to compromise because God isn't going to be able to get this one done?"

Worst case scenario – All American Christians vote for the Godly candidates and we still do not prevail. However – when we stand before God – and He asks what "WE" did with our individual freedom to choose – what will our answer be?

Even though the Jews, under Roman occupation, did not have even a taste of the freedom that "we" have in America today – Pilate did give them a choice: "Jesus or Barabbas?"

Did anyone, as they first read that in the bible, find that decision to be stunning? How can we today be any less-stunned when we know that there are presently Christians in America who – do not vote! Or, who will pretend that it doesn't really matter – it's only secular!

If America should slip even further into a godless and socialist Statist government – it will not be because the American Christian lost some tremendous battle – it will be because the American Christian surrendered – or even worse – was seduced by the "Evil Enemies" of God!
